1. Overview

These guidelines provide an overview of the call (hereafter "the Call") launched by the Charter Project Africa in Tanzania. The main objective of this document is to enable potential applicants to understand the context of the Call, its scope, priorities, support package, application and selection process and eligibility criteria. This will enable potential applicants to write sound proposals that meet the objectives of the Call.

2. Background

The Charter Project Africa is a pan-African project that focuses on the commitments obtained in the African Charter on Democracy, Elections and Governance (ACDEG) - the African Union's principal policy document for advancing democratic governance in African Union member states.

The project promotes the use of civic technology to amplify citizens' voices. It does this by providing financial resources, through small grants, as well as technical resources, through expertise, to civic initiatives aimed at promoting democracy, particularly those led by under-represented groups. This support is provided in eleven African Union member states - Tanzania, Benin, Cabo Verde, Ethiopia, Kenya, Nigeria, Senegal, South Africa, Sudan, Tanzania, and Zambia - as well as at regional and continental level.

The project also opens spaces for collaboration between citizens, civic initiatives and African Union decision-makers at national, regional and continental levels - with a focus on digital formats. Particular attention is given to the role and mandate of the African Governance Architecture (AGA). In addition, the role of the ACDEG in bringing about positive change in AU member states is monitored, analysed and promoted. The presence of a dedicated secretariat in Addis Ababa helps to strengthen the links between pan- African civil society and African Union policy makers.

The project is implemented by a consortium of six African and European organisations:

AfricTivistes is a pan-African union of bloggers and web-activists across the continent. It promotes democratic values, human rights and good governance through digital media. As part of the project, it plays a major role in civic technology and digital engagement activities.

Code for Africa (CfA) is the largest federation of data journalism and civic technology labs on the continent, with a presence across Africa. In the framework of this project, it is leveraging its expertise in digital democracy projects as well as its existing digital toolkits and will support the beneficiaries in the implementation of their initiatives.

Democracy Works Foundation (DWF) is a regional democracy support organisation with several offices in Southern Africa. Within the framework of the project, it coordinates regional dialogue and advocacy activities and supports grantees in the region.

The Gorée Institute is a pan-African organisation located on Gorée Island in Dakar,

Senegal, which has been supporting peace and democracy in Africa since 1992. Within the framework of this project, it coordinates dialogue and advocacy activities at the regional level and supports grantees in the region.

The European Centre for Development Policy Management is a leading independent think tank on international cooperation. It has a long history of research on regional and continental governance initiatives in Africa. In this project, ECDPM has the lead responsibility for policy analysis and strategy development.

European Partnership for Democracy (EPD) is a pan-continental network of European democracy support organisations based in Brussels, Belgium. It supports democracy initiatives around the world. In this project, it is primarily responsible for engagement with the AGA and acts as the consortium leader.

Despite the African Union's (AU) growing political and institutional framework for strengthening democracy, democratic governance in AU member states faces a variety of challenges, including in Southern Africa. While the translation into domestic law of normative instruments, such as the African Charter on Democracy, Elections and Governance (ACDEG), embodying continental commitments to a democratic agenda, has increased in recent years, political transformations across the continent indicate consistency with a decade long trend of democratic backsliding.

Ineffective translation into national policy of the ACDEG is a reminder that domestic politics usually trump continental objectives, especially in a context of weak monitoring and enforcement of regional and continental commitments.

It is in this context that the African Governance Architecture (AGA) was established. The AGA is defined as 'a platform for dialogue between different stakeholders with a mandate to promote good governance and strengthen democracy in Africa, in addition to translating the objectives of legal and political declarations into the shared values of the AU'. In essence, the AGA is a platform that brings together state and non-state actors to create synergies in efforts to promote good governance and strengthen democracy in Africa.

3. Priorities of this Call

Tanzania is a member of the Southern African Development Community (SADC). The SADC region like the other regions of the continent has a mixed record on democracy, governance and human rights.

In solidarity with other African states, Tanzania was a key frontline state member after independence, providing support to liberation movements across the continent and particularly in the southern African countries of what is now Zambia, Zimbabwe, Angola, Mozambique, and South Africa. The pan-African spirit continued beyond the leadership of President Mwalimu Nyerere, making Tanzania a well-respected member of the AU and regional bodies. Post the struggle era, Tanzania has showed a continued commitment to multilateralism and international cooperation, with a willingness to accede to international frameworks, but only to the extent that they do not go against national interests and local customs.

It is important to note that Tanzania has not ratified the ACDEG. While Tanzania has remained relatively stable and is a democratic state, it was historically a one-party state and the character of this democracy has largely been determined by the posture of sitting presidents post the tenure of the unifying focus of the Nyerere presidency, with some administration being supportive of a progressive democratic governance agenda at home and abroad, whilst others have been more reluctant as was witnessed in recent times. Therefore, there is still the need to entrench a democratic political culture, respect for political rights and freedoms and to consolidate democratic governance underpinned by transparency and accountability.

Civil society can play a key role in advocating for and promoting the ratification of the ACDEG and its implementation domestically in a bid to strengthen democracy in Tanzania and the region.

This Call seeks to support civil society in Tanzania to raise awareness about the ACDEG and among other things advocate for its ratification and popularization as an important instrument that can help in promoting, monitoring and assessing democratic consolidation and entrenchment of a democratic political culture as well as to strengthen engagement with SADC and the AGA.

The mobilisation of citizens' groups at the national, sub-regional and regional levels in an inclusive and multi-stakeholder approach should allow for the construction of consensus positions within civil society on the ACDEG and to share them among CSOs and citizens in Tanzania as well as with national, sub-regional and regional institutions.

The following areas of democratic governance are to be considered by applicants:

- Participation in public space & public discourse;
- Electoral cycles and elections

Democratic culture and political pluralism;

- Participation of youth and women in electoral processes (as key);
- Responsive, transparent and accountable governance.

The concept note must clearly demonstrate how the ACDEG can be used as an instrument in dealing with the democratic challenges pertaining to the themes identified. The concept note should also demonstrate how civic technologies will be used in the course of the project. The proposed projects should also seek to incorporate the following elements:

- ..special attention to youth participation;

For example, as indicated in the African Union Manuals on Youth Participation in Political and Electoral Processes in Africa which provide an overview of meaningful forms of involvement, also in post-election review;

- ...a clear focus on gender equality and women's empowerment.

For example, with reference to the SADC Gender Protocol which Tanzania has ratified.

- ...identifiable entry points for African Union policy & programming processes; For example, by feeding into the policy processes of members of the AGA Platform members, such as the Pan-African Parliament (PAP), the African Peer Review Mechanism (APRM), the African Commission for Human and Peoples' Rights (ACHPR), or the SADC, and others.

These are only examples. Applicants are free to suggest interventions of their preference, as long as they are linked to the priorities of the call.

4. Scope

The overall budget available for this Call is EUR 30 000. This amount will be allocated between two or three CSOs from Tanzania for small grants ranging between EUR10, 000 to EUR 15, 000. Each organisation will receive a separate grant which will depend on the number of selected organisations. The program will be supported for an implementation period of up to 15 months depending on the proposal (the duration will be confirmed at the time of contract signature). Each grantee will enter a grant contract with the Democracy Works Foundation (DWF).

Due to the moderate size of the financial support available for each recipient, the Call will give particular attention to the scaling up, adaptation or replication of pre-existing initiatives with an emphasis on incorporating civic technology - if they comply with the priorities of the Call as described above. Financial support can also be used to fund the use of civic technologies in close partnership with a citizens' group or civil society organisation that does not have the expertise to do it alone. Although the new or novel ideas may also be funded, these proposals, like all others, must demonstrate their feasibility and likelihood of success within the budgetary limits specified above.

5. Support package

In addition to financial support, the call will provide selected initiatives with additional technical support according to their identified needs.

In summary, the support package is as follows:

- ❖ Financial support
Up to UER15, 000 per grant.
- ❖ Technical support
Provision of integrated technical expertise through the engagement of civic technology specialists.
- ❖ Thematic support
Provision of thematic expertise on democracy support, African Union governance and continental policy development.
- ❖ Marketing, communication and development support
Facilitating access to decision-makers at the African Union level as well as to the international development community.

❖ Peer learning and networking

Facilitation of exchanges between beneficiaries and other members of related civic tech ecosystems.

6. Application and selection process

The selection process will work as follows:

- i. Applicants are to submit expressions of interest in the form of a comprehensive concept note.
- ii. Once expressions of interest are received, reviewed, and evaluated, the qualifying two to three initiatives will be selected and expected to submit a full proposal with clear timelines and budget.
- iii. The selection of the potential grantees will be subject to the extent to which the concept note demonstrates how the ACDEG can be used as an instrument in dealing with the democratic challenges pertaining to the themes identified, the use of civic technology and focus on youth and women.
- iv. The shortlisted applicants at concept stage will be technically guided by DWF to develop full proposal/project documents.
- v. Whilst the applicants are developing the full proposal, DWF shall conduct a due diligence appraisal of the shortlisted applicants
- vi. Final award of the grant to the shortlisted applicants will be subject to the organization's passing the due diligence appraisal particularly with regards to legitimacy and existence of the organizations on the ground

After passing this administrative check, applications will be subject to an assessment. The following three evaluation criteria will be assessed:

- Relevance to priorities (as described in these guidelines);
- Technical viability of the proposed initiative;
- Experience and operational capacity of the implementing organization;
- Elements of added value (as described in these guidelines) ;
- Expected impact on the proposed target groups;
- Sustainability;

- Efficiency.

Based on this initial assessment, the successful applicants will be shortlisted to submit a full proposal and potentially receive a grant, subject to passing the due diligence appraisal. Individual feedback on why proposals were not successful cannot be provided due to resource implications.

The successful applicants will be required to develop their concepts into full proposals complete with workplan, full budget and a monitoring, evaluation and learning (MEL) framework whose templates will be shared after the concept stage. During this period of finalizing proposals DWF will simultaneously conduct a due diligence on the selected applicants. 6.4 Negotiation, finalisation and contract signing

The responsible staff of the Democracy Works Foundation (DWF) will interview the selected applicants and make comments and requests regarding the proposed initiative. A number of additional documents may need to be completed by the applicant.
